

THE Secretary Institute of Great Britain has always given the Highest Awards, when tested against other so-called Disinfectants, to CALVERT'S No. 5 CARBOLIC. Statements that other disinfectants are superior to Carbolic Acid should be treated with distrust. Sold by most Chemists in 8 and 16 oz. bottles, at 1/- & 1/6 each; 1 lb. and 1 gallon tins, at 3/6, 4/- & 6/6 each.—P. O. CALVERT & Co., Manchester.

Established February, 1845.

SEVERAL gentlemen who sang in the chorus of the "Hymn of Praise" met yesterday afternoon and presented Mr George P. Lammert with an ivory baton as a mark of appreciation of the very valuable services he rendered in connection with these concerts. Mr C. F. A. Sargent, who made the presentation on behalf of the Committee, referred in well-chosen and graceful terms to Mr Lammert's abilities as a conductor. The baton, which was handsomely mounted in gold, bore the inscription "Presented to Mr G. P. Lammert by the chorus of the "Hymn of Praise." Mr Lammert in a few words suitably acknowledged the gift. A meeting of the committee who have organised these successful concerts was held immediately afterwards, when it was decided to hand over the balance £40, raised by the last concert, to the Kowloon Institute. We take this opportunity of congratulating Mr Lammert on the high honour conferred on him and feel sure the community of Hongkong will look forward with the greatest pleasure to see him wield the baton with equal success at future concerts.

"SHOULD the Governor Vote?"—Under this heading, a contemporary is responsible for some rather trifling criticism of his question as to why Government Offices at Harlow (tailors all their predecessors) do not vote as divisions in the Legislative Council as enjoined in "Rules and Orders." The Times thinks that it is sufficient to say that the Speaker of the House of Commons does not vote; but what in the relation is there between the House of Commons and the House of Lords? It is common to the one and the other, and the speaker might find, if necessary, in the House of Lords where the Lord Chancellor as Keeper of the Great Seal and the Speaker, always creates divisions, although he has no casting vote. Now, in both cases, the Lord Chancellor and the Common Law Speaker—the one in virtue of his office, the other by appointment according to Rules and Orders. What would the thought of a Lord Chancellor who speaks? I'll give an voting like the Speaker of the Lower House; as the President of the Peers and "Keeper of Her Majesty's robes co-?" It will look much better "beginning." He would readily be called account for a breach of duty as well as to the answer may be the best able, cannot consider course to take in the Privy Council—perhaps quite in, who gave Governors Gordon and Hamilton the right to override and entrench upon the Rights and Orders of the Legislative Council in which they are called to preside Presiding Members of the House of Commons. But the Minister of State seems to say on the subject matter of constitutional practice. Chief Officer.

OBITUARY.
Sir Robert Peel is dead.

We take the following biography, which comes from Men of the Times—
C. B. The Right Hon. Sir Robert, Bart., G.C.B., eldest son of the late Sir Robert Peel, second baronet, born May 1, 1809, educated at Harrow and at Christ Church, Oxford, and entered the diplomatic service. He was attached to the British embassy at Madrid from June, 1844, till May, 1845, when he was appointed Secretary to the British Legation in Switzerland; became Charge d'Affaires in Nov. 1846, and resigned in Dec. 1850.
Admitted to the House of Commons, 1847, as Chief Secretary for Ireland till July, 1851, till Dec., 1850. He acted as Secretary to the Special Mission to Russia at the coronation of Alexander II., in 1856. Sir R. Peel was returned one of the Members in the Liberal interest for Tamworth soon after the death of Mr. Estlin, with whom he succeeded as Member for Tamworth. He was re-elected as Member for Tamworth, July 1860, and retained the seat till March 1868. He was sworn a Privy Councillor, and made a G.C.B., Jan. 6, 1868. He took a prominent part in the debates of the House of Commons, especially on Irish questions, and suggests additional policy of the secretary. He met at a C servants for Huntington. In 1864-7, for Blackstone from 1868-6. At General Election of 1868 he stood as Home Ruler for Iwerston, Bury, and was defeated by Mr R. D. Hulse, Victor

Sir R. Peel married a sister of the great Marquis of Tweeddale, and sister of Dowager Duchess of Wellington.

LADY FOOTBALLERS.

The Sun gives an interesting account of the first appearance of the Lady Footballers who have been to the public on March 23rd at Horney.

The New Woman, as a footballer, had not accomplished her emancipation in a half-hearted way—if she felt a touch of old-fashioned respectability, she would have laid aside the petticoats, beneath which of old time her dainty feet were wont "like little mice to steal in and out." She had thrown aside the garments of conventionality, and she stepped fearlessly into the field of war in a flannel shirt and knicker.

The ladies of the North wore red shirts with white trimmings and blue knickerbockers. The ladies of the South sported shirts of light and dark blue—of the former the petticoats, beneath which of old time her dainty feet were wont "like little mice to steal in and out." She had thrown aside the garments of conventionality, and she stepped fearlessly into the field of war in a flannel shirt and knicker.

The crowd numbered some 8,000 spectators, round the ropes and upon the stands, while the walls of the enclosure had their coping of humanity, and the grounds were a living sea of heads and shoulders.

A tremendous roar of whistled shouts and laughter went up as the two teams came out together. The spectators were thoroughly good-natured, and protected, in their respective ways, when an irresponsible photographer stepped up to the line to take a snap-shot. He was glad to retire with his mission unaccomplished.

It is painful to state that there is more than a suspicion that one of the so-called ladies was only a boy, while the referee was but a man.

North won the test, and at 4.40 Miss A. E. Lewis kicked off. Miss Housley returned, with the gentlest of manners, and a scrimmage with Miss Potter. The referee had been all right had Miss Coupland not have been all right had the other two ladies interfered, and while the other two ladies were disputing for possession, quickly got off with the ball. Miss Coupland was fragile of form and small of stature, but comparatively—fleet of foot. So she had a very fine run all to herself, which seemed to please the opposing ladies, as they did not interfere with her. Then recognising that they were Biltons as well as ladies, and they had to do their duty, unwillingly charged the fair Miss Coupland; and, not having wings to support her when her foot followed this "Maiden court," to borrow a cricket term, in which North and South got indiscriminately mixed up, and the contrasting colours formed a very pretty combination—a much better colour than the one which the ladies were wearing, indeed, that. But serious business was at hand. The North team invaded the Southern territory, which was a surprising proceeding to Miss L. Clarence.

That lady stood musing over the seriousness of it all and overlooked the fact that it was the South who were kicking the ball past her, and scoring the first goal for the North. But this hard experience of the way in which a wicked world takes advantage of the confiding female, again undid her. A few minutes later, when an undoubted conspiracy to take advantage of feminine defencelessness ended in the success which so frequently attends organised calumnies, and Miss Lewis scored the goal for the North. The South were so busy with the second referee, and would not be disturbed by a goal, and for gingerly shooting, beautiful misses, and the capital goalkeeping of Mrs. Graham. But Mrs. Graham was at last evaded, and Miss Lewis scored the first goal for the South. The crowd cheered vociferously, and once more settled down to enjoy the joke and routine of the game. Play in the first half was beyond criticism and indeed description. Through the whole of it the ladies showed that, in spite of their advanced costume, they had retained their usual sense of responsibility. "Q&A" was as nothing and less than nothing to them, and, but for the horrid man the referee, might have been supposed to have been banished to Jupiter, along with various other cautions of the game.

Half-time:

North... .. 2
South... .. 1

The play in the second-half was as highly effective from a spectator's point of view as was the first. Goals were occasionally taken, in a kind of inconsequential way, but there was never any development of exciting play, which might have distracted the attention of the spectators from the fair players to the game. Every body in the huge jock of crowds, a few unappreciative people, except, as called it slow, and among these were probably the individuals who got up a fight outside of the ropes and caused the police to be called in. But these may only have been men of foresight who were preparing themselves for the day when the New Woman will be New enough to carry her athletic experiences of the football field into the ruling and ordering of the household. In the result the North won, the final score being—

North... .. 2
South... .. 1
